

Arrive AI Advances Shareholder-Friendly Capital Strategy with Streeterville Standstill Agreement

May 19, 2026

This press release highlights Arrive AI's 8K filing on May 18th with the SEC.

INDIANAPOLIS, IN / ACCESS Newswire / May 19, 2026 / Arrive AI (NASDAQ:ARAI) (the "Company"), a company building autonomous logistics infrastructure through intelligent delivery endpoints, today announced that, at the Company's urging, it has entered into a standstill agreement with Streeterville Capital, suspending the existing financing program between the parties.

The move was initiated by Arrive AI as part of its broader effort to optimize the Company's capital structure following continued operational progress and a strengthened cash position. The agreement is expected to reduce potential shareholder dilution and alleviate market headwinds associated with the prior financing structure.

"With our improved financial position and increasing access to more efficient capital alternatives, we believe this was the right time to proactively simplify our capital strategy in a way that benefits shareholders," said Dan O'Toole, Founder and CEO of Arrive AI. "This agreement provides greater flexibility, reduces potential dilution, and supports our long-term growth objectives."

Arrive AI also recently became eligible to utilize an S-3 registration statement, enabling the Company to establish an at-the-market (ATM) facility. The Company believes this milestone will significantly lower its cost of capital while providing greater flexibility and efficiency in accessing future growth capital.

The Company views the standstill agreement as another strategic step forward as Arrive AI continues expanding its autonomous logistics platform and enterprise partnerships.

About Arrive AI:
